INNOVATION AND TECHNOLOGY LAW SUMMER SCHOOL

Padova – June 18–23, 2018

DESCRIPTION

The Innovation and Technology Law Summer School addresses emerging issues in the field of technology law, namely exploring the interface between computer science and law and the significant role that law plays in promoting innovation. The Summer School provides participants the opportunity to attend one of the Europe's oldest universities, exchange ideas related to law, technology and innovation in an international environment, and experience cultural outings in a small group setting in Padova and nearby Venice.

TARGET GROUP

Professors, graduate students, research scientists, and professionals who are interested in the intersection of law and innovation. The program is subsidized, with registration limited to 30 applicants.

ACADEMIC BOARD & SPEAKERS

The Innovation and Technology Law Summer School is promoted and directed by Prof. Claudia Sandei (Univ. of Padova) in cooperation with Prof. Seve Falati from Albany Law School in New York, with distinguished Law School Faculty from the United Kingdom, Macedonia and Italy also participating.

COST: 550 Euros (approx. $700). Includes tuition, accommodation, and the leisure/cultural programme including a trip to Venice and a group dinner in Venice.

REGISTRATION AND ENROLLMENT

To request more information or to enroll, please contact Prof. Claudia Sandei at itlaw.unipd@gmail.com. Applications are accepted until April 30, 2018
